EXPERIENCED MBAS FROM EIGHT TOP SCHOOLS TO MENTOR STUDENTS AT MORRIS BROWN COLLEGE

Includes MBA alumni from Columbia, Cornell, Emory, Georgia, Georgia State, Harvard, London, and Michigan.

ATLANTA November 1, 2021 -- Morris Brown College boasts a new mentorship program that matches local MBA professionals from eight prestigious schools with its growing base of diverse students. The inaugural program will support a select number of full-time juniors and seniors along with a unique cohort of freshman from the College's newly launched adult education program.

"This wonderful opportunity offers an educational and mutually beneficial experience for both the mentor and mentee, and Morris Brown is excited and motivated to bring it to fruition," said the College's President, Dr. Kevin James.

Mentors are expected to provide student participants exposure to new career & industry possibilities as well as general business guidance, including insights into various functional areas, best practices of networking and interviewing strategies.

Tom Mallory (HBS MBA 1990) created the program along with assistance from Terry Comer (Morris Brown 2003, HBS MBA 2006). An impressive group of 23 other local MBA alumni from the eight schools are mentors.

"I'm excited to support Morris Brown's resurgence, particularly given how instrumental the College was in my personal development as a business leader," says Comer. "This program has tremendous potential and would not be possible without the broader Atlanta MBA community being so generous of their time."

The collection of mentors represents a diverse group of our nation's most respected MBA programs. All of the mentors hold senior leadership positions within established startups to Fortune 500 companies, spanning a variety of industries from retail to digital infrastructure. Together, these talented MBAs with a wide range of professional experiences and backgrounds, including 10 who are presidents of their companies, are coming together to exclusively support Morris Brown College after its recent reaccreditation candidacy announcement.

At the conclusion of the first 8-month period, mentors and mentees are expected to complete surveys to best evaluate the program's impact as well as identify future opportunities for expansion and improvement. The objective is to continue to serve the College for many years to come as Morris Brown expands its enrollment.
